

Danny Bernstein

Danny is a partner at Roper Greyell where he provides strategic and timely advice to clients on labour, employment and human rights issues that arise in the workplace. He advises employers throughout Canada across a wide range of industries, and values getting to know his clients and their businesses and becoming a trusted advisor in order to get the results that meet their short and long-term objectives.

Danny's approach to workplace issues is practical, thoughtful and detail-oriented. Clients often seek his expertise in dealing with complex workplace issues such as disability management, restructurings and terminations, performance management, corporate transactions and contract negotiations. Danny is a strong litigator who is equally comfortable in court or pursuing his clients' interests by negotiating settlements.

Roper Greyell LLP is one of the most well-respected and recognized workplace law practices in Western Canada. We combine ingenuity with insight to deliver practical and cost-effective solutions for our clients' workplace issues.